5 films to see during the Gershman Philadelphia Jewish Film Festival

Catch heartwarming dramedies, moving documentaries and more Nov. 9-23.

MADELINE PRESLAND

Get inspired by watching stories of hardship and triumph come to life on the big screen this month.

The Gershman Philadelphia Jewish Film Festival is throwing their 39th annual Fall Festival with movie screenings at venues all over the city and in the suburbs starting this weekend. As one of the oldest Jewish film festivals in the world, this is your chance to see films from a wide range of genres addressing important topics. Here are five films to see during the festival.

"Golda's Balcony"
The film version of the Off-Broadway play by the same name stars Tovah Feldshuh in a solo performance that captures even more on film than you would see live in a theatre. "Golda's Balcony" tells the story of Golda Meir as she reflects on her life shortly before her death. Meir's life and career spanned countries as she emigrated from the Russian Empire, became a schoolteacher in Wisconsin and eventually an Israeli politician. The film is compiled with footage of Feldshuh's stage performances in 2003. "Golda's Balcony" holds a record as the longest-running one woman performance on Broadway.
Nov. 20, 2 p.m., National Museum of American Jewish History, 101 S Independence Mall E, $6-15

"Joseph Pulitzer: Voice of the People"
Get to know the life and legacy of Joseph Pulitzer in this documentary that follows Pulitzer's unlikely path to discovering the American dream. The now legendary journalist and newspaper publisher emigrated from Hungary and found his calling as a reporter after a series of hard labor jobs. He rose to prominence in St. Louis and purchased The New York World, which would solidify Pulitzer's path to becoming a media mogul.
Nov. 13, 2 p.m., National Museum of American Jewish History, 101 S Independence Mall E, $6-15

"There Are No Lions in Tel Aviv"
See a documentary that tells the story of how a rabbi from Copenhagen became the "Rabbi Dolittle" of Tel Aviv. Max Shorenstein arrived in Israel with two bird cages and a love for exotic animals. After running a pet store out of his house, Shorenstein would open Tel Aviv's first public zoo and dedicate himself to a lifelong cause of educating children about animals.
Nov. 17, 2 p.m., The Colonial Theatre, 227 Bridge St., Phoenixville, PA, $6-15

"Chewdaism: A Taste of Jewish Montreal"
What happens when two comedians decide to eat their way through a midlife slump in their hometown? "YidLife Crisis" web series creators Eli Batalion and Jamie Elman explore Montreal's rich Jewish history by visiting the restaurants that have been serving their community for more than 100 years. The screening also includes the chance to mingle with other moviegoers during a bagel breakfast buffet (complete with mimosas) before the film.
Nov. 17, 10 a.m., National Museum of American Jewish History, 101 S Independence Mall E, $25

"Standing Up, Falling Down"
The festival concludes with a screening of a film about a failed stand-up comedian and a successful dermatologist forming an unlikely friendship after meeting in a bar. Billy Crystal ("When Harry Met Sally," "Analyze This") and Ben Schwartz ("Parks and Recreation," "Night School") star as a duo united by their flaws as they attempt to forge new paths. This dramedy explores what it takes to find the courage to face failure and make reparations. Slate Magazine Senior Editor Sam Adams joins this screening as a special guest.
Nov. 23, 7:30 p.m., Philadelphia Film Center, 1412 Chestnut St., $15

Fall Fest 2019 runs from Nov. 9-23. Visit pjff.org to purchase individual screening tickets, festival passes and the full festival schedule.

Living their maturity - JONAS BROTHERS

GETTY

Nick, Joe and Kevin left their egos behind to share their happiness on stage. Joe chatted with Metro about the band's new tour.

GABRIELA ACOSTA SILVA, MWN

"We want our fans to know that we can't wait to look them in the eyes and sing intensely."
Joe Jonas

The Jonas Brothers are in the middle of their Happiness Begins Tour. The band's comeback to stages worldwide has become a musical injection to lift the spirits of its followers. No matter the age, everyone starts to move their feet when they hear the songs of this band composed by Joe, Nick and Kevin Jonas. In the midst of a pop landscape widely dominated by reunions, the brothers are willing to take on this tour to share their happiness. Joe Jonas spoke with Metro about this path besides his partners in crime.

What broke when you guys split up and what brought you back together again?
When the band broke up, we were a little angry and it was complicated. The music was not as strong as it had been, we weren't selling as many tickets; besides, our relationship was not healthy. We were not communicating as we should. We always thought that this bad stage would pass and that we would eventually get back together. Now we're living a maturity in every sense.

How have you taken the tour's success?
It's been amazing! We have grown with the music, the feeling of being together, the audience reacting quickly and that our new songs "Sucker," "Only Human" and "Cool" have reached the world fast, is a good sign. We feel lucky and happy, and that only makes us want to work harder, because we want to stay on stage for a while.

What is the biggest gift that being in this band has given you?
It has brought us a lot of happiness, it is something that all of us always wanted to do and while we enjoy doing it, without pressure and without worries, we are just having a good time.

How serious are you when making music?
Our job is to have a great time at our concerts. We have worked a lifetime for it. Therefore, nobody takes music as seriously as we do. We are also at a stage with a lot of personal and professional balance, it shows in what we do.

Some people claim that the Jonas Brothers will not last long, what do you think of that?
Tell them to talk to us in five years. ["Laughs"]

Pop has been very questioned in recent years, what do you think about that?
I think it's going through a serious time. I think there are many artists who make pop that does not lead to anything ... I don't know, so I hope we are bringing something different and fun, but that people take seriously.

The controlled chaos of Black Midi

We caught up with the exciting new band as they tour across the country this fall.

PAT KING

It's an understatement to say the media world can be guilty of only understanding art on a surface level. A perfect example of this could be seen as the much-buzzed-about and young British art-punk band, Black Midi, made their U.S. television debut this past week. Like most new bands, exposure on any level can be paramount to their momentum. But instead of making the first appearance on the late night talk show circuit, the band was asked to perform on Chicago's WGN morning news show.

I'm not saying the people at WGN were not fans of the band, with their challenging and sometimes punishing brand of post-punk. But I'm guessing there was a sense of "what the hell just happened" lingering in the air after the band tore through a particularly vicious version of their song "Near DT, MI" from their fantastic debut album, "Schlagenheim" (which is German for, "To Hit"). Bassist and singer Cameron Picton shouts the words in a locked position as the rest of the band – guitarists Geordie Greep and Matt Kwasniewski-Kelvin and drummer Morgan Simpson – absolutely dismantle the studio with their intensity. It will go down in what will be another chapter in the folklore surrounding this already storied band and in a way, makes sense for what they are out to accomplish: the complete dismantling of conventions.

"We didn't really set out to start a band, per se. We were just friends," says Greep, whose singular vocal stylings and intricate guitar playing are cornerstones to the band's sound. "There was never really a point where we were like 'we're a band now. We're a band so let's try to make it as a band.' We had gigs and it just went."

The band members all met while attending the prestigious BRIT School and started Black Midi right after graduating. Listening to their brief body of work, it's baffling to think of a band that can cram so many ideas into each of their songs, with a masterful grasp of controlled chaos, and are all in their early twenties.

"We just start with one idea or two ideas. But the main idea is to keep the songs exciting, dramatic and interesting. They need a real trajectory. It's just about keeping them moving and to have a thematic structure," says Greep of the band's creative process. "Tension and release is one of the most important parts in music, really. We weren't really thinking about making an album, it was just more about having songs we liked for the live show."

Luke Kleintank talks.

MOLLY GIVEN

Luke Kleintank and Thomas Jane in "Crown Vic." PHIL CARUSO

There have been a vast amount of films following the stories of police officers in the past, even just in the last year alone. Some highlight the admirable courage an officer can showcase, some point out flaws in the justice system and in those who carry it out, but with Joel Souza's latest thriller "Crown Vic," the storyline is not meant to sway audiences one way or another — it's meant to show a real human story. "Crown Vic" follows the story of hardened and accomplished officer Ray (Thomas Jane) and rookie cop Nick Holland (Luke Kleintank) on Nick's first shift on the job, and to say this night becomes eventful is an understatement. For Luke Kleintank, the story hits more of a familiar note after riding around on the same shift his character would have experienced with the LAPD. It's the things he saw, and the experiences he lived with the officers that helped him frame his character and overall feel of what the job requires every day. Kleintank sat down with Metro to give more insight into his character and the hard-hitting film.

What first drew you to the character of Nick Holland?

For me, I was always interested — ever since I started acting I always thought it would be intriguing to play any man of service, especially a cop. Today they get a lot of flak, and the beautiful thing is as an actor you get the chance to spend time with these people working. I had the opportunity to see their side of things as opposed to reading whatever is in the news or through personal opinions. Nick himself is a newbie, he's coming into this with wide-open eyes. He wants to do right by his family, and do right by his community, but I don't think he's ready for what's about to hit him.

What sets "Crown Vic" apart from other films of the same genre?

It's real. Thomas (Jane) and I ended up riding along with police officers about five or six times and we really got to speak to and see these guys on the job. I even had the chance to invite one of them out to the premiere at Tribeca. It definitely fits the bill as far as mainly the time they spend in the car. There are good cops and there are bad cops, and I don't think we're trying to speak on any one point in general, we're just telling a human story.

Thomas Jane's character makes a comment at the end of the film that Nick Holland reminds him of a younger version of himself, would you agree with that?

I would, to a degree. Ray is doing what he's doing, but not as a dirty cop. You have the other dirty cops we showcase in the story played by Josh Hopkins and David Krumholtz, but Ray is a man doing what he has to do. Is he overstepping boundaries and using his power? Of course he is, but at the same time, you've got to ask the question: what would you do in the same situation? Whether or not you're a cop, you would try to save your loved ones — he just happens to be a police officer. What I think is beautiful about this movie is there is a lot of gray area. It raises those questions, and it gets people talking. So I think [Nick] could be a younger version of him, they both went into it with the same kind of hopes and dreams. Ray went into this job thinking protect and serve, but with all of the weight that comes along with the job, it hardens you. You spend all of this time with negativity around you and you start to wonder and analyze people wondering if they are a threat or not. The other side of it is where they get to save people, and that's the rewarding part. But 8 times out of 10 these guys are battling something that is going to affect their mentality in a great way.

The ending was left a little open-ended for your character, what do you think the future holds for Nick Holland?

I think it's undecided. Nick comes from a stock of police officers and I think he now realizes why his dad was so silent when he would come home after a shift. He talks about not having a relationship with his father and how he's afraid of messing up with his own child on the way. But it's interesting how we really do become our parents. But I think Nick has a lot to offer with fresh eyes, and hopefully, he sticks with honestly protecting and serving. But it's interesting because Ray says it at the end, "You have to do things on other people's behalf, and they will hate you for it." There's a lot of truth in that.

"Crown Vic" opens in NYC on Nov. 8 and in additional cities on Nov. 15.

Witch hunt or necessity? Maine's rugged independent voters torn over impeaching Trump

Sean Fowler, 43, poses in Lewiston, Maine. REUTERS

Maine has a majority of unaffiliated voters.

In an era of hyper partisan politics, Sean Fowler is a rarity: an independent voter who once considered the impeachment inquiry into U.S. President Donald Trump a "witch hunt" and now thinks Congress should remove him from office.

But the customer service worker in Maine remains apprehensive about the potential upheaval, an indication of the mixed emotions independents – and those politicians who depend on them – are feeling around the impeachment fight consuming Washington one year before the 2020 election.

The small slice of the American electorate that is truly independent can play an outsized role in picking presidents and there is no better example of that than in Maine, a state where more voters are registered to no political party than are Republican or Democratic.

The impeachment proceeding could complicate both parties' efforts to win over politically unaffiliated voters, according to Reuters/Ipsos opinion polling and interviews with about a dozen independent voters in Maine.

Overall support for Republican Trump's impeachment among independents has increased, the national Reuters/Ipsos poll showed in late October. The poll found 45% of independents supported impeachment while 32% opposed – a 13 percentage point spread and the largest gap since the poll began tracking views on impeachment in June 2018.

However, a majority of independents do not appear to want another lengthy investigation after having observed a nearly two-year-long special counsel's Trump-Russia election probe – 54% agreeing that "Congress should focus on fixing important problems facing Americans, rather than focusing on investigating President Trump."

Some independents in Maine echoed the polling, saying they were becoming more open to impeachment as the evidence comes to light. Others said they were concerned the effort was hurting the country.

Reuters/Ipsos polling shows there is room for independents to further embrace impeachment.

"While 45% of voters said Trump should be impeached, 48% said they had already concluded that Trump "pressured Ukraine to investigate Biden." An even bigger group - 59% - thought it was appropriate for Congress to investigate."

10-year-old boy hit by stray bullet while walking home from school

ISTOCK

A 10-year-old boy is in critical condition after being struck in the back of the head by a stray bullet Wednesday as he was walking home from school.

The boy, Semaj O'Branty, is expected to survive his injuries. A man involved in the shooting has been arrested, according to cops, but the gunman is still at large.

The shooting occurred on the 2000 block of Margaret Street in Frankford around 3:30 p.m. on Wednesday. It is being reported that the child was not the intended target.

A witness named Harry Stork told CBS that they heard 11 to 13 shots in a row. Additionally, it was reported that a woman down the street, identified as Jahaira Cruz, a medical assistant, helped the victim.

Cruz told CBS that, "I noticed that the young man had a wound on the left side of his neck. So I instinctively just kicked in and grabbed someone's sweatshirt and correctly applied pressure to the area. As I was doing that, I had already started calling 911 prior."

CNN reports that a man driving a red Pontiac G6 fired at the suspect in custody. It is being reported that one of the men involved in the shooting allegedly tried to shield the boy and fired back at the other gunman.

Philadelphia Police Capt. John Walker told outlets that according to video footage, "He tried to cover the kid and protect the kid, but the kid takes a shot, and you see him go down in the video."

Walker continued, "You see the car as it turns the corner, the back rear driver window comes down, and you see an arm extend out the window, and he begins to fire," Walker said.

O'Branty was transported to St. Christopher's Hospital for Children, where he was last listed in stable condition.

The recovered pup with officials. PSPCA

Stolen Shiba Inu puppy found safe

The Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has found a missing Shiba Inu puppy that was stolen from the organization's Erie Avenue headquarters two weeks ago.

The Pennsylvania SPCA told Metro they received a tip as to the pup's location and sent a Humane Law Enforcement team to the property in the Olney section of Philly.

The PSPCA confirmed the identity of the microchipped puppy and took him back to their headquarters on Erie Avenue.

The male puppy is believed to be between two to three months old. He was not up for adoption at the time of the kidnapping, a PSPCA spokesperson Gillian Kocher told Metro.

In fact, the lost puppy arrived at the shelter just hours before a man was caught on camera stealing him from a kennel.

Kocher told Metro that the person of interest went straight for the pup and placed him inside a backpack.

It was reported that the person of interest is a male, who wore a black Nike hoodie and black hat at the time of the theft. At this time, the Pennsylvania SPCA is working with Philly PD to learn more about the theft.

Family mourns loss of autistic woman found dead in Fox Chase home

35-year-old Jill Millman was found fatally stabbed Wednesday.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
Rebecca.Glasser@metro.us

Police have identified a woman who was stabbed to death in her Fox Chase home as 35-year-old Jill Millman.

Millman, who was autistic, was pronounced dead at 5:36 p.m. Wednesday in her home on the 800 block of Bergen Street.

The victim's mother, Beth Ann Weinstein-Rubenstein, told ABC that she went to feed Millman's pets while she thought her daughter was at work.

Weinstein-Rubenstein saw a bathroom light was on and went to investigate and saw her daughter lying naked in the second-floor bathroom, according to CBS. It was reported that at first, Weinstein-Rubenstein thought she had slipped out of the shower.

"You hear on the news all the time until it happens to you, you don't understand, and last night it happened to us," Millman's step-father, Bob Rubenstein, told ABC.

Philly PD told the family that someone stabbed Millman several times in the back. Now, her loved ones are trying to understand how something like this could happen.

"Jill was on the spectrum. Jill had autism, and she had some other developmental delays, and sometimes people with autism... a lot of people don't understand," Weinstein-Rubenstein told ABC.

Nevertheless, Millman pursued her dreams and worked as a prep cook at The Dining Car, which is located on Frankford Avenue.

It was reported that police are currently reviewing security footage in the area for any possible clues about the murder.

"She needs justice," her mother told local media. "You hear it too many times, but she needs justice. This wasn't right; this wasn't fair to take somebody away from a family like that and leave them in pieces."

No arrests have been made. Anyone with information is urged to call Philly PD at 215-686-TIPS.

A 'green interest rate?' Fed digs into climate change economics

In their deliberations on monetary policy, Federal Reserve policymakers need to consider many factors, but up to now, climate change has not been one of them.

But as worries about the warming planet increase, the U.S. central bank is taking a closer look at the economic impacts of higher temperatures, more frequent severe weather and rising sea levels.

A "green interest rate" is one of the ideas on view Friday as the San Francisco Fed convenes the U.S. central bank's first-ever conference on climate change and economics. The event is so oversubscribed a webcast has been created to meet demand.

While the Fed lags central banking peers such as the Bank of England in making climate change an explicit part of its financial stability remit, the conference is the latest sign the Fed has started to take the risks and costs of global warming seriously.

"It's important for us from a monetary policy perspective to know what the potential growth rate of the economy is and if climate events or climate risk is going to shave that off, even if it's over the long term," San Francisco Fed chief Mary Daly said in New York earlier this week.

Papers to be presented at this week's conference provide that perspective in a range of ways. One estimates climate change could subtract 7% from real world per capita GDP by 2100; another finds that subsidies for green energy like wind and solar are not an effective tool against global warming, but carbon taxes, if implemented in many parts of the world, would be. Others papers map out how climate change affects asset prices and show trade policy subsidizes greenhouse gas emissions.

Medical News Today

BOSTON – The medical community now has a safer and more effective alternative to sex pills, which they can immediately start offering to male patients. It will not require a prescription.

The alternative, called Sensum+®, is an amazing new sex cream that activates a sensation pathway on the penis known as TRPA1.

When applied as directed, it leads to incredible arousal and much more satisfying erections.

It also promotes powerful climaxes and ultimately results in significant improvements in performance.

"Men can expect outstanding sexual improvements with regular use. The penis will become hyper sensitive, making them easily aroused and excitable" explains Dr. Henry Esber, the Boston based scientist who introduced Sensum+® to market.

"And that's because Sensum+® does what no other sex pill or drug has done before – it stimulates a special sensory pathway right below the skin, which leads to phenomenal sensation."

Overtime, constant exposure (especially if circumcised) leads to decreased penis sensitivity, which can cause problems with arousal and erection quality. There just isn't enough feeling to get excited."

"Diabetes, anti-depressants and normal aging also leads to desensitization, a can make the situation even worse."

"This is what makes Sensum+® so effective and why the clinical studies and clinical use studies have been so positive."

MISDIAGNOSIS LEADS TO UNEEDED PRESCRIPTIONS

After years of clinical research and testing, Dr. Esber and his team have discovered an incredible compound that triggers arousal while helping men achieve erections more easily.

This compound isn't a drug. It's the active ingredient in Sensum+®.

And according to users, it produces sensational results. Many men report remarkable improvements in sexual performance and overall satisfaction.

They are more sexually active than they've been in years with the average Sensum+® user over the age of 50.

Clinical studies show Sensum+®'s key ingredient activates the TRPA1 sensation pathway right below the skin of the penis.

According to research, many men adults and seniors who suffer sexually have lost sensation in their penis due to constant rubbing and exposure and health related issues such as diabetes, hernia surgery, use of some anti-depressants, multiple sclerosis, and other type of illnesses.

This desensitization often makes sex extremely challenging. Without a 100% feeling in the penis, its next to impossible to get truly aroused.

Worse, modern day sex drugs have absolutely no effect on sensation and are laden with side effects. They simply stimulate an erection by enhancing blood flow.

It's why most men are rarely satisfied after taking them and why Sensum+® users are always stocking up on more and couldn't be happier.

"We knew the science behind Sensum+® was there, but we never expected results like we're seeing. It's far exceeded our expectations" said a spokesperson for the company.

A STAGGERING 80% IMPROVEMENT IN SENSATIVITY

Researchers have conducted several clinical studies on Sensum+® and the results from the most recent are undoubtedly the most impressive.

A data analysis of three clinical surveys of 370 men showed that an amazing 80% of Sensum+® users experienced dramatic improvements while using the cream and as a result were aroused easier and a phenomenal boost in performance.

Additionally, 77.4% of men also reported much more satisfying climaxes, making sex for both them and their partners nearly 300% more satisfying.

"I have full feeling and sensitivity back in my penis. Everything feels better. My erections are harder, I'm more easily aroused, I can finally climax again. This stuff honestly works like magic in the bedroom. I couldn't be happier at 66!" raves one Sensum+® user.

HOW SENSUM + ® WORKS

Sensum+® is a new sex cream for men that's to be applied twice a day for the first two weeks then just once every day after.

There are no harmful side effects for either the user or partner. It also does not require a prescription.

The active ingredient is an organic compound known as cinnamaldehyde with a patented combination of sexually rousing extracts.

Research shows that as men get older, they often lose sensitivity to the penis.

Although very subtle, this desensitization can significantly hinder sexual performance and lead to serious problems with becoming aroused and staying/getting hard.

The cinnamaldehyde in Sensum+® is one of the only known ingredients to activate a special sensation pathway on the penis called TRPA1. Once activated, it restores tremendous sensation to the penis, stimulating arousal and powerful erections.

NEW SEX CREAM MAY REPLACE POPULAR SEX PILLS: This new patented clinically proven arousal cream is now available nationwide.

This would explain why so many users are experiencing impressive results so quickly and why the distributors of Sensum+® offer their low cost cream with an amazing guarantee.

GUARANTEE DISCOUNTED SUPPLY TAKES RISK OFF CONSUMERS

A large percentage of men report life changing results with Sensum+®. That's why it is now being sold with an above-industry standard guarantee.

"We can only make this guarantee because we are 100% certain this cream works," says Esber.

"We want to take risk off the consumers. So besides offering massive discounts, we're also offering this guarantee, so they don't have to risk a cent."

Here's how it works: Use the cream exactly as directed and you must feel a significant improvement in sexual sensations. You must be more easily aroused with harder, longer lasting erections and be having the best sex you've had in years.

Otherwise, simply return the empty bottles. Then, the company will refund your money immediately.

HOW TO GET SENSUM + ®

This is the official release of Sensum+®. As such, the company is offering a special discounted supply to any reader who calls within the next 48 hours.

A special hotline number and discounted pricing has been created for all Pennsylvania residents. Discounts will be available starting today at 6:00AM and will automatically be applied to all callers.

Your Toll-Free Hotline number is 1-800-520-0667 and will only be open for the next 48 hours. Only a limited discounted supply of Sensum+® is currently available in your region.

Consumers who miss out on our current product inventory will have to wait until more becomes available and that could take weeks. The company advises not to wait. Call 1-800-520-0667 today.

Sixers vs. Nuggets

No Eagles game this weekend, so we will jump into some NBA action as the Sixers (4-2-1 against the spread) take on the Nuggets (3-3-1 ATS) in Denver Friday night.

The Sixers and Nuggets split their season series last year, with Philly winning in Philly and Denver winning in Denver. Joel Embiid played in the win and not the loss, but in the Philly victory the Nuggets did do a solid job on him – holding the big man to 15 points.

Denver center Nikola Jokic, on the other hand, feasted in both affairs – averaging 29.5 points in the two meetings.

It's early, but so far Denver's best player has had an underwhelming start to this year. "The Joker" is averaging just 14.9 points per game and there have been a pair of games this season in which he's scored under 10 points.

Bottom line is that the Sixers are too talented to lose three games in a row. Rolling with Embiid and the boys.

The play: Sixers -1

NFL Week 10 betting: Giants at Jets

Both the Giants and Jets are effectively out of the running for a playoff spot, but dignity will be on the line in this "civil war" at MetLife Stadium on Sunday, and bettors seem have a good opportunity ahead of them with the "road" team in this spot.

The Giants have lost five in a row, thanks mainly to a woeful defense that ranks 28th in yards allowed per game. That's not to say that Daniel Jones hasn't been disappointing under center; the rookie signal caller has put up modest stats in his own building, completing 63.4 percent of his passes for just 5.8 yards per attempt with a 4-5 TD-INT ratio in four tilts. However, he draws one of the easiest matchups he's had in weeks with the Jets' 24th-rated pass stoppers. Saquon Barkley could be stymied on the ground by Gang Green's sixth-rated run stoppers, but he's averaging 38 receiving yards per game and figures to earn his touches that way.

ROBERT CRISCOLA

The Jets' offense has been dreadful with and without quarterback Sam Darnold in the lineup, ranking dead-last at just 223.5 yards per game. It's hard to count on them being able to move the ball even against Big Blue's lousy unit. The Giants are 5-1-1 against the spread in their last seven games against teams with losing records

Sixers monitoring Simmons' shoulder

The Sixers star suffered a shoulder injury on Wednesday.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Ben Simmons injured his shoulder on Wednesday night. GETTY IMAGES

Philadelphia 76ers star Ben Simmons underwent further evaluation on his right shoulder on Thursday, as first reported by Chris Haynes of Yahoo Sports.

Simmons suffered the injury during Wednesday night's 106-104 loss to the Utah Jazz in what was originally diagnosed as a minor sprain of the AC joint in the shoulder.

It is unknown whether or not he'll be available for Philadelphia's next game of their west-coast road trip tonight against the Denver Nuggets.

The 23-year-old has remained relatively healthy since early injury concerns dotted his introduction to the NBA.

After being selected No. 1 overall out of LSU, Simmons suffered a fractured foot in a preseason game and was forced to miss the entire 2016-17 season.

He's missed just four games since then.

Simmons has gotten off to a slow start, at least by his standards, this season as he's averaging 13.1 points, 6.9 assists, and 5.4 rebounds per game.

He averaged 16.4/7.9/8.5 over his first two NBA seasons.

His shooting percentage is also down from 55.4-percent to 49.4.

It could be a byproduct of adapting to a new offense that contains veteran scoring forward Al Horford and shooting guard Josh Richardson joining the existing supporting cast of Tobias Harris and Joel Embiid.

In Simmons' absence, look for Raul Neto to get the starting role at point guard. With the 76ers already without Shake Milton, who is dealing with a knee injury, Neto stepped in for Simmons on Wednesday night and put up 11 points, four rebounds, and three steals in 30 minutes of action.

Richardson could also see some time at the 1, but Trey Burke could get a golden opportunity to break into the Sixers lineup.

The veteran point guard who seemed to rediscover his game with the Knicks over the past two seasons has yet to see minutes in Philadelphia.

Phils' farm better than advertised?

GM Matt Klentak is "bullish" on his farm system.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Phillies pitching prospect Spencer Howard. GETTY IMAGES

While the Philadelphia Phillies have plenty of work to do to improve their MLB roster in 2020, their farm system doesn't seem to be bountiful of talent ready to help the cause.

Don't tell general manager Matt Klentak that, though.

On Thursday afternoon he appeared on WIP sports radio and admitted: "I'm more bullish on the farm system than some."

"Yes, we need to create a continuous pipeline of players that both can feed our major league club, but also be used in trades and I feel like we're doing that," he continued. "I disagree with any sort of assessment that our system is bad. We've got some really good players."

There have multiple assessments that suggest otherwise. At the beginning of the 2019 season, MiLB.com ranked the Phillies' farm system seventh-worst while Baseball America pegged them as the sixth-worst in July.

And that was after the Phillies selected UNLV shortstop Bryson Scott with the 14th-overall pick of the 2019 MLB draft a month earlier.

Scott (#89) is one of three Phillies prospects currently ranked inside MLB Pipeline's top-100, joining infielder Alec Bohm (#34) and pitcher Spencer Howard (#88).

The Phillies' fourth-best prospect — pitcher Adonis Medina — fell out of the top-100 this season after a difficult 2019 with double-A Reading.

Of the top three, Howard is expected to make his MLB debut first — possibly during next season.

He made the jump from rookie ball to double-A in 2019 where he posted a 2.35 ERA in six starts (30.2 innings pitched). He's shown a natural ability to miss opposing bats with a fastball that has been clocked between 94 and 98 mph. However, his offspeed pitches and control need to improve to make the jump to the majors.

The Phillies could use as much starting-pitching help as they didn't get much from Zach Eflin, Vince Velasquez, and Nick Pivetta.

Per MiLB.com, Bohm's expected time of arrival in the majors is in 2021 while Scott's is in 2022.

There is quite a drop-off in talent after those four promising names, which is more of an indictment on Klentak and Andy MacPhail as they've failed (so far) to find homegrown talent that will help the Phillies break their current playoff drought.

♈ Aries Emotional matters will surface if someone you do business with tries to bully you. Protect your rights, integrity and money. Don't sit back when you should take action.

♉ Taurus Before you decide to take part in a joint venture, medical experiment or someone else's dream, consider the consequences. Make partnerships a priority.

♊ Gemini Talk about your intentions, plans and feelings, and find out where you stand. It's easier to move forward if you know that you have the approval of a loved one.

♋ Cancer Be reasonable. If you overreact or become the problem instead of the solution, little will get done. Think matters through and offer positive suggestions.

♌ Leo Find out what it will cost to make a personal improvement you've been considering. Looking your best, honing your skills and romancing a loved one should be priorities.

♍ Virgo Take part in something that will bring about positive change. Making a difference will bring you in touch with beneficial people.

♎ Libra Spending time with someone who brings out the best in you or signing up for a day of pampering will give you the boost you need.

♏ Scorpio An interesting lifestyle change should be on your mind. Consider ways to lower your overhead and decrease stress. A smart, unexpected maneuver will pay off.

♑ Capricorn Stop being so hard on yourself. You've got more going for you than you realize. If there is something you don't like, change it and keep moving forward.

♒ Aquarius A change to the way you handle your money needs to be looked at carefully before you commit. A fast-cash scheme someone offers to you will end up being a disappointment.

♓ Pisces Minimize your intake and maximize the time you spend getting fit and living a healthy lifestyle. Walk away from anyone who tries to pressure you into something that isn't good for you. EUGENIA LAST
